Director: Suzan Beraza
USA / 2010 / 65 min /
Documentary

The idealism surrounding the budding culture of plastics and the convenience of ‘disposable living’ in the 1960s was dependent upon one key item - the garbage can. With an ‘out of sight, out of mind’ mentality we are able to convince ourselves that single-use disposables—beverage containers, food packaging, razors, diapers—actually go away. In this compelling and entertaining award-winning documentary, Jeb Berrier, a charismatic father-to-be, sets out on an investigative journey to discover the sobering environmental, physiological and economic implications of the number one consumer item in the world—the plastic bag. www.bagitmovie.com

From the creator of the award-winning film “Garbage! The Revolution Starts at Home” comes a shocking tale about the products we use to clean our homes and bodies. Chemical explores the life cycle of everyday household cleaners and hygiene products to prove that, thanks to our clean obsession, we are drowning in a sea of toxicity. The film is at once humorous, as we watch the Goode family try to turn a new leaf by creating and living in a toxic free home, and informative, as director Andrew Nisker works with many experts to give audiences the tools and inspiration to live toxic free. www.chemicalnation.com
